NI World launches today

Thursday, 9 December 2021

Today sees the launch of Northern Ireland World, as part of the digitally-led division first announced earlier this year in August.

NI World – a new website built on decades of great local weekly newspaper journalism – will focus on bringing readers a range of local news, views and issues about towns and villages as well as information from across the NI region.

Spearheaded by Editor Valerie Martin, the news website will include more leisure and local events in a new easy-to-read format from food and drink to great things to do locally.
